

Identity, capabilities, and changing economics:
Reflexive, adaptive, socially embedded individuals

John B. Davis

Table of Contents

Preface

Acknowledgements

Part I – The failed pathway and exit strategies

Introduction

Chapter 1: Objectivity in economics and the problem of the individual

Chapter 2: The untenability of the unembedded Homo economicus

Chapter 3: The ‘reconciliation problem’ and an individuality reconstruction problem

Part II – Rebuilding the individual conception

Introduction

Chapter 4: Adaptive reflexive individuals: A capabilities conception of the person

Chapter 5: A general theory of social economic stratification: Stigmatization, exclusion, and capability shortfalls

Chapter 6: Roads not taken yet to be taken: Enhancing capabilities

Part III – Value and subjectivity

Introduction

Chapter 7: Economics as a normative discipline: Value dis-entanglement in an objective economics

Chapter 8: Individual realization? Rethinking subjectivity in economics

Chapter 9: Change in and changing economics

Bibliography

Index